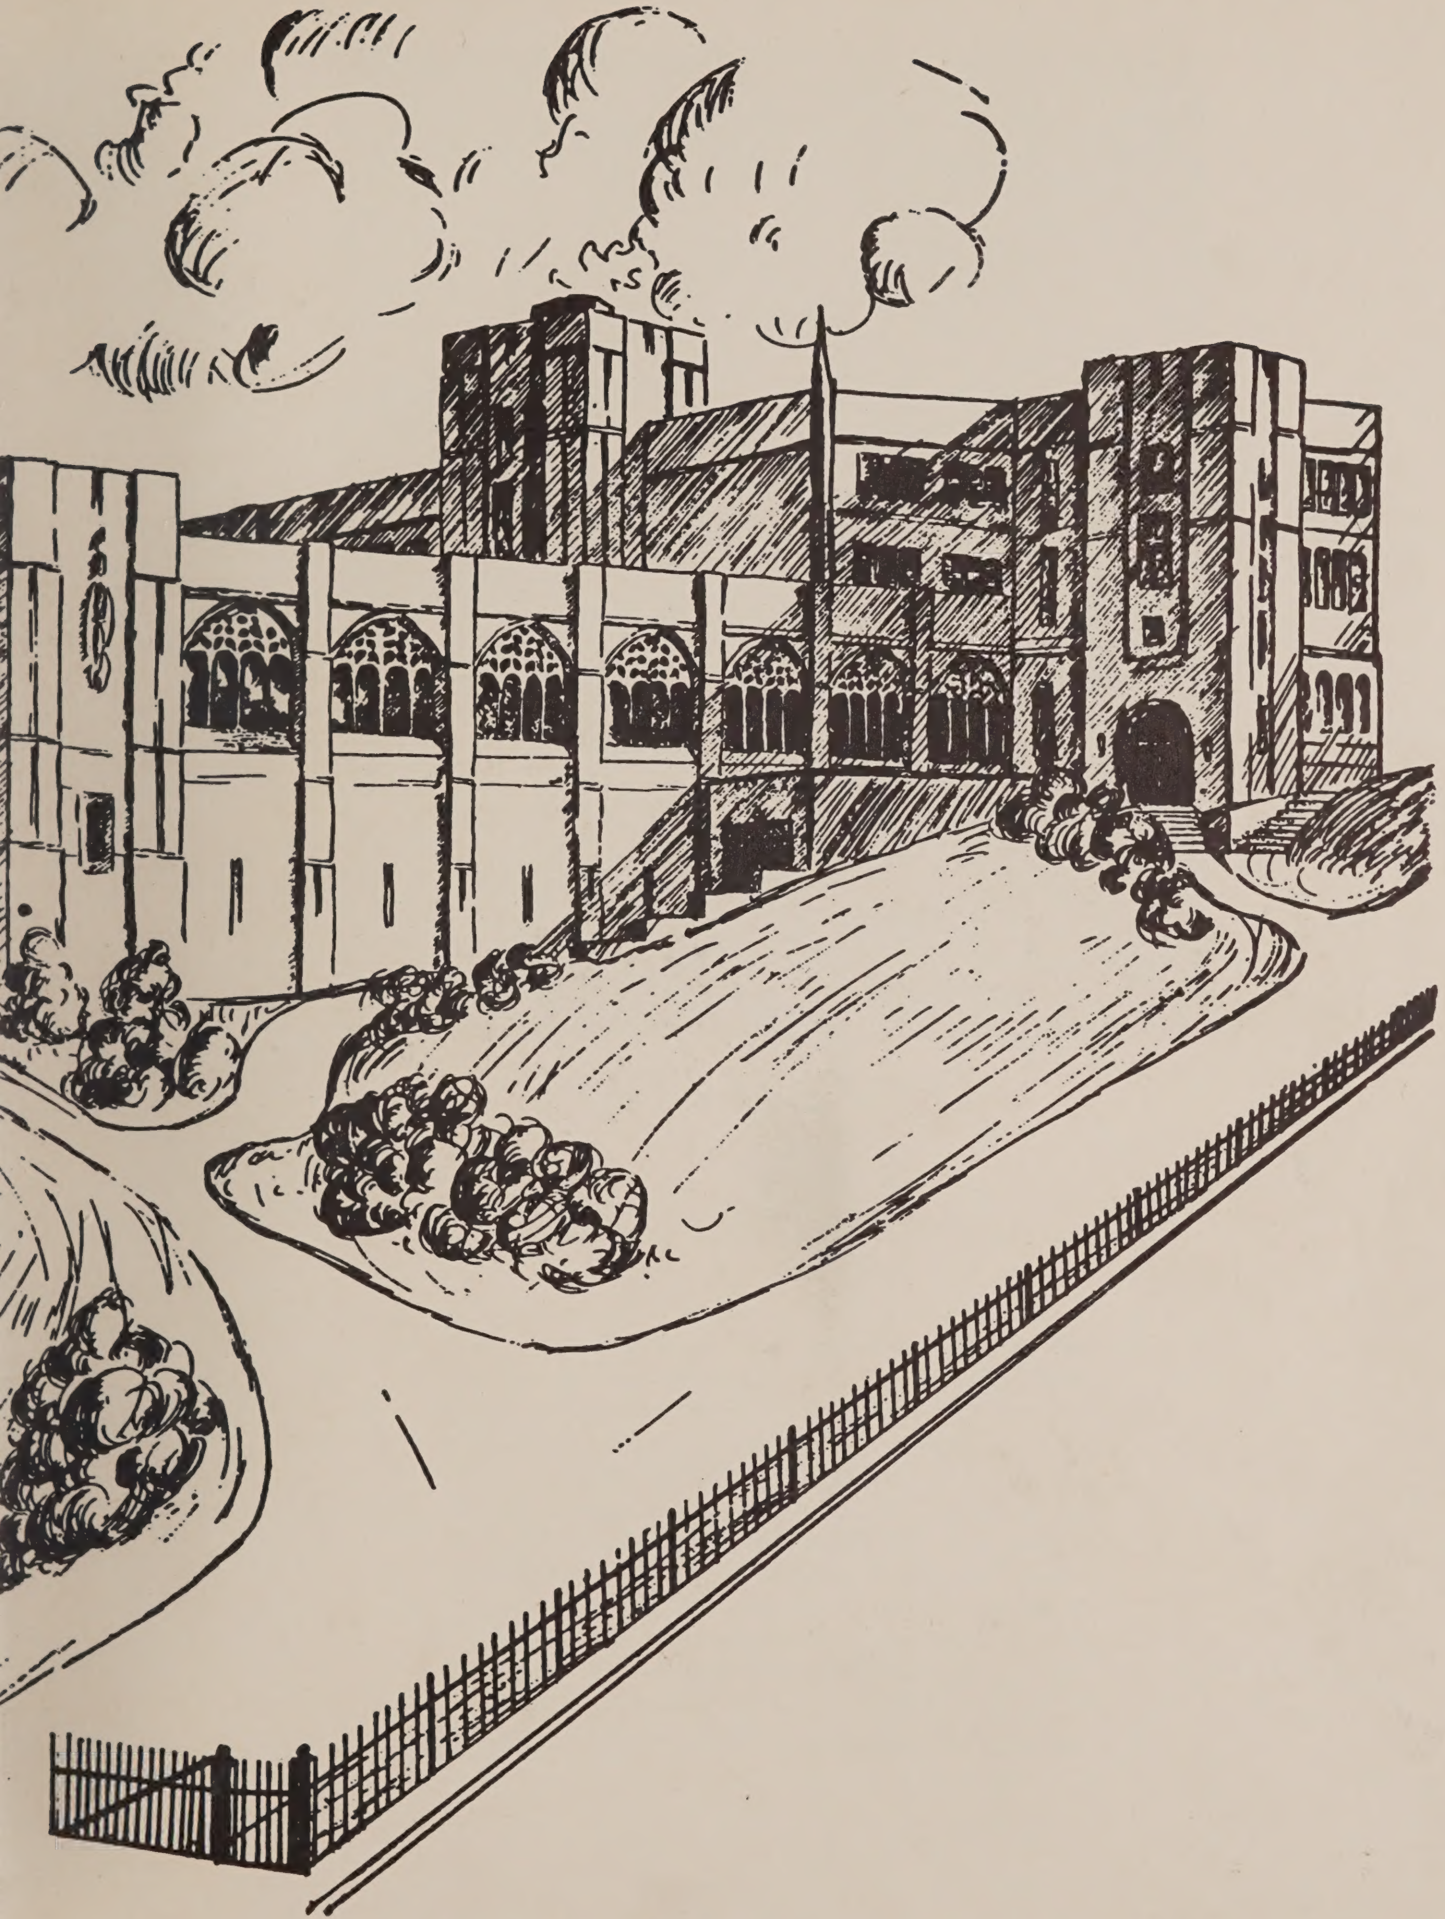
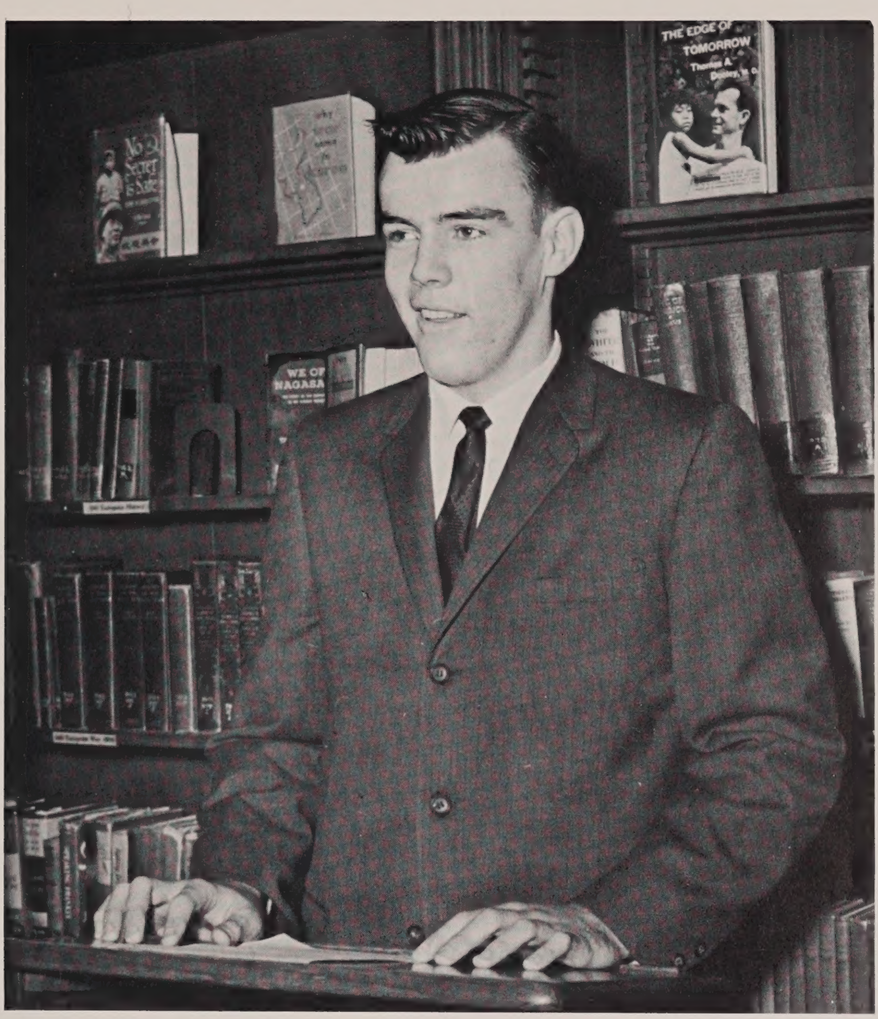
THE GOTHIC





JAMES GANNON

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

After three years of study and homework, the day we have all been looking forward to has finally come. I cannot help but feel that some of us wish that this day had not arrived so quickly. For all of us know we leaving a lot of fond memories behind us. The teachers do not have to be told of the part they played in our three years at BRIGHTON HIGH, for they realized from the start they were molding us into the citizens of tomorrow. For them their job is done. It is up to us as young men and women to go out into this complex world of ours that exists today and apply all that they taught us. So I, if I may, speaking for myself and the graduating Class of 1962, would like to thank you.

EDITORS' MESSAGE

Fellow Classmates:

We are very proud to present to you, the seniors of the Class of "62," the thirty-fourth volume of the Gothic.

We give our sincere thanks to Mr. Kelliher, sponsor, Miss Pelletier, business adviser, Miss Gilman, Miss O'Leary, Mrs. Heywood, Miss Marshall, and Miss Glennon, for without their assistance the publication of our yearbook would have been impossible.

May this yearbook help you to recall the many wonderful experiences shared in the "Castle on the Hill."

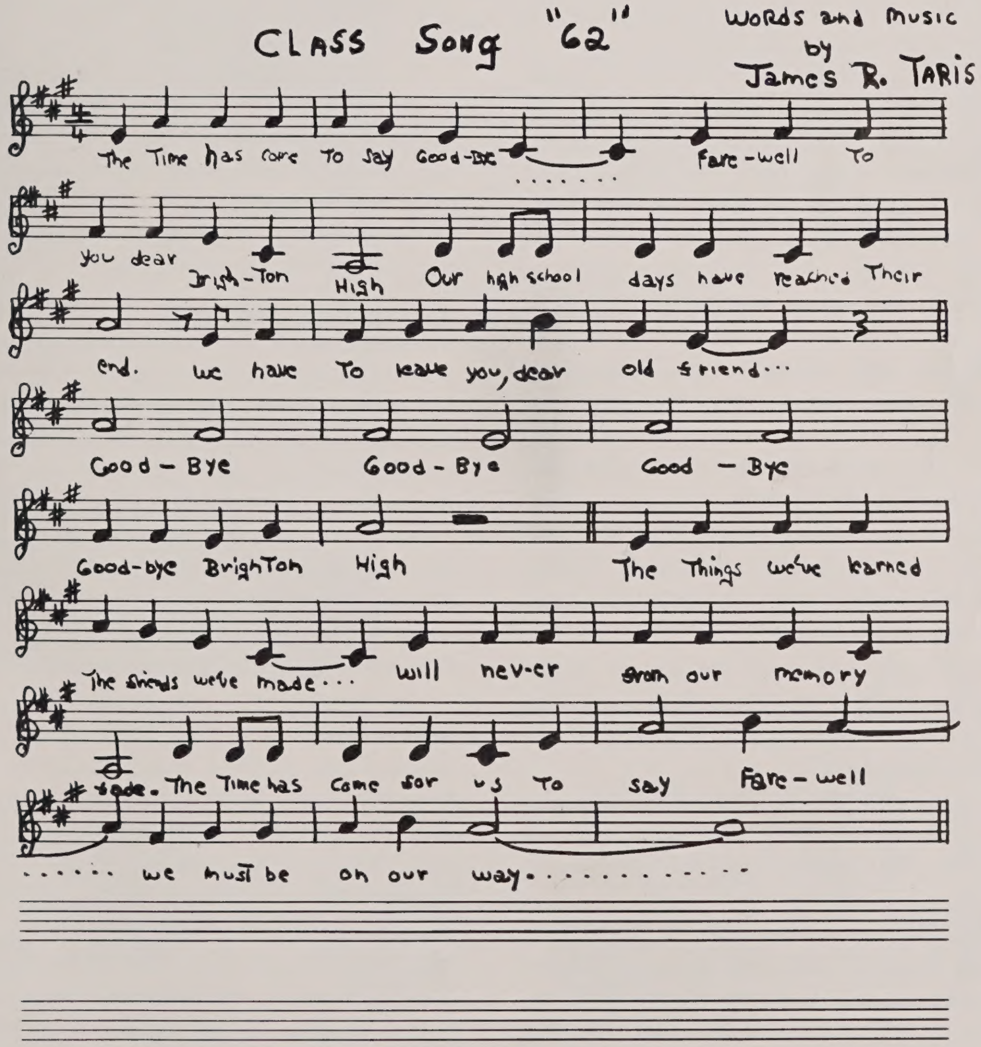
CLASS SONG



CLASS Song "62"
Words and Music by James R. TARIS
The Time has come To say Good-bye .... Fare-well To you dear Brigh-Ton High Our high school days have reached Their end. we have To leave you, dear old friend...
Good - Bye Good - Bye Good - Bye
Good-bye BrighTon High The Things we've learned
The friends we've made... will nev-er from our memory fade. The Time has come for us To say Fare - well
...... we must be on our way..........

JUDITH MICHAELS, ROBERTA SCHNEIDER

CLASS HISTORY

Sooner than we think, the class of 1962 will be leaving our beloved Brighton High School to go forth and begin making its own way in the big wide world outside our ivory walls.

As the closing of our three happy years at B.H.S. draws near, we think back to the day when we took our first steps into the "Castle on the Hill."

Let's see; Oh yes! I remember now! It was a warm day in May of 1959. We were dismissed from our Junior High School early that day, so that we could be at our new school to look it over. We were excited and I guess a little scared, but we soon lost that fear. Mr. McInerney was the first to speak to us with his sincere words of welcome. We were then given a guided tour through this school we were to enter in the Fall.

What a hectic first week we had! After being given our schedules, we proceeded to play the game of search and find.

As the weeks and months flew by, we became accustomed to our new everyday routine.

Before we knew it, the holiday season was here and for the first time, we saw Brighton's annual Christmas pageant. The Glee Club sang some beautiful songs which put us in a gay frame of mind.

In May of 1960, we announced the arrival of the class of '62 with the election of Alison Bell and Cathy White to the '60-'61 Cheerleading Squad, our first opportunity for representation.

Summer and fun went all too soon, so we thought, and in September we hit the books once more. On our first day of classes, we greeted our old friends and teachers.

The sports season came up fast. Our Hockey team had a successful year, as did our Basketball team with Bob Garceau as the Captain of the Knights. The Track team turned out to be the best, winning the District Indoor Track Meets, scoring almost a perfect 18 points. Our Football team with Dennis Hamlin as Captain, played some rough games to win their share of fame for their Alma Mater.

The remaining months of our Junior year flew by and before we turned around, our Senior year was here at last.

It can't be possible! Eleven years of school couldn't have flown by that fast, but facts are facts and the calendar reads 1962, our graduating year. Now I know what "Tempus Fugit" means.

We had a pretty group of Cheerleaders representing us for the '61-62' sports season. Senior Alison Bell, Captain; Cathy White, Co-Captain; and Marilyn Barresi all from homeroom 201. Also cheering our boys to victory were Cathy Beltram, Judy Hogan, Ruth Mutch, Jackie Valentino, Larraine Webber, Pat Reeves, and Philomena Quinn.

For the first time in the history of our school, under the direction of Mr. Bergen, the Current Events Club went on a wonderful trip to the United Nations Building in New York. On their return, the club presented Mr. McInerney with a new microphone, which was an improvement over the old one. Nowadays, even the students in the back row can hear what's going on.

Another extra-curricular activity for our Senior year was the UNESCO High School Conference. Fifteen Brighton students did a lot of hard work and study to be good representatives of our school in the discussion on Africa and the United States.

On January 15, our Senior Class Elections were held. Chosen to be the representatives of the Graduating Class of 1962 were: President, James Gannon; Vice-President, Angela Cammarata; Treasurer, Mary Weinstein; Secretary, Marilyn Barresi, and elected to the Executive Committee were: Larraine Webber, Marie Tocci, and Donna Harrison. January 25 was the day for electing our Class Marshals. Coming out on top were Alison Bell, Ruth Mutch, Mary Mazzola, Victoria Kondos, and Charlotte Flynn.

The closing of our Senior Year brings the Senior Supper, Class Day, and the Senior Prom. The Prom brings about an end to twelve years of study and friendship which will remain in the hearts of the members of the Class of 1962 forever.

Class Poem

Our thoughts of parting
Are like thoughts at twilight—
A rush of memories anxious to be heard.
So now we listen . . .
Considering our years at Brighton High,
We look toward its terraces,
Its towers casting shadows on the stairs.
Familiar faces of our friends and teachers bring to mind
A gratitude we'll always feel
For guidance and for happy times.

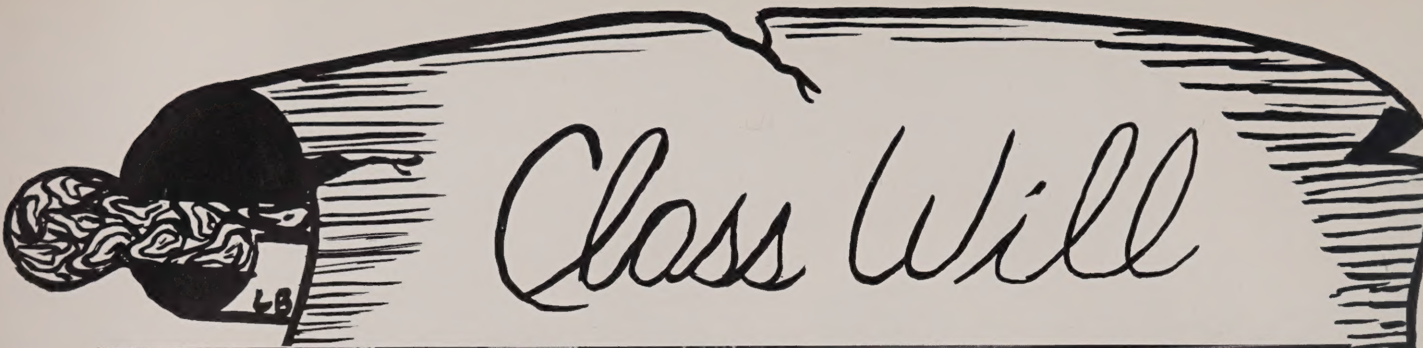
Class Will



BARBARA CEDRONE, LILLY BROWNE, DIANA SERINA

We, the Seniors of Brighton High School being of sound mind (?), body, and spirit, do hereby bequeath to the faculty and student body this last will and testament.

To B.H.S. we leave fond memories of three happy years of learning, unforgettable experiences, and everlasting friendship to be carried in our hearts throughout the coming years.

To our beloved teachers we leave the following:

Mary Falcione leaves Mr. Murray the desk that she occupied in 115 for three years.

Charlene Brooks leaves to Mr. Healey a year's supply of punishment sentences.

Katherine Beltram bequeaths to Mr. Kelliher her limited Latin vocabulary.

Margaret Jackson leaves to Mr. Bergen her membership in the Graph Club, and all her empty fountain pens.

Gayle O'Connor leaves to Miss Sullivan her Algebra book in hopes that some promising sophomore can put it to better use.

Roberta Schneider bequeaths to Mrs. Levinson a headache pill so she can keep on teaching fifth period in spite of the screaming and whistling outside the window.

Sheila Doyle leaves to Mrs. Boyle all her tardy slips.

Sandra Russell leaves to Dr. Moore a piece of hair from her haystack.

Mrs. Rowell's faithful bookkeeping students leave her a 99-year supply of journal paper.

Marion La Farge bequeaths a time lock to Miss Adams to prevent anyone from entering her room after 9 a.m.

Stella Koufas leaves to Miss O'Leary her best wishes in teaching the coming sophomores.

Diane Laezza leaves to Mrs. Joyce six sets of used stencils to be cleaned by her.

Linda Gage leaves to Mrs. Moore one quiet senior Biology Class.

Thomas Farrell bequeaths to some equally hard working junior all his duties in rooms 318, 312, 327, 207, 302, and 201.

To Mr. Bergen from Sharyn Sandler goes her "Tardy Tessie" sweater.

Susan Weiner leaves to Mr. Kelliher one new stapler to take the place of his other finger-nail breaker.

Carole Laham bequeaths to Dr. Moore six college course classes all on the Dean's List.

To any star athlete from William Sprague goes his own well-worn gym suit.

Lorraine Davison leaves to Mr. Barry an unending supply of chocolate candy for his famous "sweet tooth."

Patricia Mattingly leaves her ink stained ruler to Miss Donahue for any purpose she sees fit.

Judith Cohen leaves all the money she never counted correctly to Miss O'Leary.

Karen Morris leaves a complete notebook filled with hieroglyphics called shorthand notes to Mr. Mazer.

Mary Komola leaves to Miss Donahue her Bookkeeping book to be given to some unsuspecting junior.

Barry Pauldick leaves to Mr. Dailey "600 times."

Ann Norris leaves to Mr. Wellings all of her brains??

Judith Wing leaves to Mr. Barry a year's supply of peppermint gum.

Nancy Friedholm leaves to all the teachers the memory of her unforgettable name.

Phyllis Stein bequeaths to Miss Maguire a new dust rag for dusting her room.

Marilyn Barresi bequeaths to Miss Donahue all the Bookkeeping papers that she never bothered to do.

Anna Paolini leaves to Mr. Buck all the books he made her take home.

Elvira Pease leaves to our custodian, Mr. Gillis, her elevator keys.

Judy Michaels leaves to Mrs. Joyce a homeroom of all boys.

Diana Serina bequeaths to Mr. Casey a box of chalk that is guaranteed not to crumble as he draws on the blackboard for his Drivers' Ed. Classes.

Lilly Browne bequeaths to Mr. Mazer a new magnifying glass to be used in spotting those "naughty little erasures."

To Mr. Casey a little foreign sports car is left by Barbara Cedrone of 301, so he won't wear himself out trying to teach mechanics to 30 girls.

Kathleen Berardi leaves to Mr. Casey a desk full to the brim with candy and gum wrappers.

Twenty-five paragraphs of the Pledge to the Flag go to Mrs. Joyce from Marilyn Whitten.

The exhausted brain of Alan Swartz is left to Mr. Wellings as proof of all the hours of hard work it put in.

Joyce Rouleau leaves to Miss Adams her own personal secretary, who, naturally, speaks French.

To Dr. Moore from Robert Hoffman comes a membership card to the Junior applesauce, complete with monogrammed spoon.

Susan Gross leaves to Mrs. Levinson a gift certificate for the Susan Gross Beauty Salon.

Susan Hoffman leaves to Miss Sullivan all the homework that she never forgot to give her classes.

Charles Swindell leaves to Mr. Buck a notebook full of a year's Economic notes.

To add to that, Anna Lemanis leaves to Miss Sullivan a box of colored chalk for her geometry drawings.

A rosy red apple and a certificate for two dozen more of the same are left to Mr. Mazer from Peter Dalton.

Victoria Kondos leaves to Mrs. Joyce all the dust she has made her homeroom wipe from her room.

Betty Townsend leaves all her filing equipment to the next lucky Office Practice student in Mrs. Levinson's class.

From Jacqueline Valentino to the third year Latin class is left Vergil; lots of luck.

Ronni Levine leaves to the girls' lunchroom all of her candy wrappers and cookie crumbs.

Claire Hudson wishes to all the sophomores all the best of luck in their next two years at Brighton High because she is sure they will need it.

Mary Weinstein leaves to Mr. Mazer a senior Shorthand pupil who will take over her job of giving out paper before class.

Charles Harrison bequeaths his status as a senior to some promising junior.

Left to the next Senior class from Leila Eastman are the moments of enjoyment she has had at Brighton High.

William Dawe leaves his post outside of room 212 to some junior in need of a job.

Arlene Brack leaves to the school a ski lift for the hill, an escalator for the weary students, and a cupcake notice to Dr. Moore.

All of Jeannette Saquet's old science projects are left to the Biology Department with her "best wishes."

Marion Zahlaway bequeaths to next year's luckiest senior her seat in Mr. Bergen's American Government Class.

Marsha Pisano leaves her seat on the M.T.A. to some poor sophomore who will have to use it for the next three years.

Catherine White leaves the Cooperative office peace and quiet following her departure.

Left by Sarah Shand to Louise White of 322 are all her hard nights of studying, and also her gym bloomers.

Egbert Stellingsma leaves a good, still functional, pair of brains to anyone who needs them.

To anyone in the market for good jokes, a complete manuscript of them is left by Bonnie MacPhail.

Grace Coughlin bequeaths to the class of 1963 the three long flights of stairs to the third floor.

Best wishes come from Patricia Matatall to all the teachers who have taught her, and to all the students that will follow her.

Joanne Hirshfield leaves to the future seniors the typewriters in room 204, in hopes that they will be able to have them fixed before the next class will is written.

To all Biology II students is left the joys of dissecting various creatures not yet dissected by Ellen Peck.

Jo-Ann Cincotta leaves her most prized possession to the girls of Brighton High School; her mirror.

Joyce Blanchard leaves her brother Ken to her favorite teacher, Mr. Murray.

Alison Bell bequeaths to Philomena Quinn one set of new cheerleaders and one old set of memories.

A laugh to ring forever through the halls of Brighton High is left by Charlotte Flynn.

Janet Semerjian leaves to all the up-coming seniors many pages for one condensed edition of her book of knowledge.

Paula Ross leaves to Mrs. Boyle all the crumbs that are in her desk leftover from her homeroom lunch period.

Rhoda Green leaves to Miss Donahue a 1962 pencil sharpener complete with some old fashioned pencil cuttings.

James Kiggen leaves his seat in Mrs. Heywood's senior English class, so some senior boy will have the experience of being a lone boy in a class of thirty-five giggling girls.

Maria Tenaglia leaves her unused space on the Honor Roll to some more fortunate junior.

To any shorthand student who can beat Louise Haley's record for writing shorthand comes the Gregg Shorthand medal, which, she is sorry to say, she didn't win.

Mary Mazzola leaves Mrs. Levinson a brand new typewriter, because such a wonderful teacher deserves only the best.

To Mr. Mazer from Nancy Assenza come all her excellent shorthand papers, and the best of luck in his promotion.

Mary Gagliano leaves one worn-out typewriter to all our typing teachers, complete with the prints of her ten worn-out fingertips.

Marcia Silverman leaves to Mr. Casey a box of candy to munch on while teaching his senior English class.

Justine Burrows, after finally cleaning out her desk, leaves all her empty gum wrappers to Mr. Bergen.

All the laughs of the fourth period English class taught by Mr. Casey are left to him by Jean Wolf.

Mr. Murray is soon to be the proud owner of all the books once used conscientiously by Lorraine Anderson.

One lost Chemistry book is left to Mr. Healey, that is, if he can find it.

James Gannon bequeaths to Mr. Ambrose a pair of shoes that are unconditionally guaranteed against anything that might befall them.

Thomas Bouzan leaves to Mr. Carty his hockey helmet and the elbow pads that he never got.

James Walsh leaves to Mr. Passaretti an ash tray complete with six slightly used cigar butts.

Denis Cederman leaves to Mr. Passaretti, also, a class as good as 4A in 1963 as it was in 1962.

Charles Smith bequeaths to Mr. Masse a rose for his now bare lapel.

All of the number 12 hockey shirts originally belonging to James McCallum will now go to Mr. Carty.

Anthony Parsons bequeaths to John Pesaturo all his football equipment, including his helmet with all the battle scars on it from his hard-fought battles on the gridiron; hope you have more luck with it, John.

Stephen Novak leaves to Mr. Carty all his old and broken hockey sticks.

James Ryan leaves to Mr. Masse two sets of clothes for Vergil, and, of course, his mate.

Ronald Volch leaves to Mr. Passaretti a brand new '49 Plymouth.

Daniel Lunney leaves to Mr. Ambrose a book of directions on "How To Use A Slide Rule."

Rodney Draffen leaves to Mr. Passaretti his very promising science notebook.

Thomas DiGesse leaves to Mr. Passaretti happy memories of the best class he ever had; 110A.

A new battery in sections is given to Mr. Passaretti by Edward Lee, to replace the one that was lost.

Mr. Masse is the recipient of a subscription to Silas Marner from Charles Waterman.

Robert Burke leaves to Mr. Ambrose all of his unopened books and unused papers.

Phillip Burleigh leaves to "Tiny" his football shirt for use in the coming games.

Michael Connor leaves to Mr. Passaretti two feet of his height so that he will be seen as well as heard.

To add to that, to Mr. Passaretti goes a supply of tardy admission slips from Gerald Chaulk.

The good attendance of the Automotive Course, Room 110, is left to Brighton High School by Frank Recupero.

Donald Mosley leaves his basketball uniform for future victory to Mr. Passaretti.

To Mr. Najarian the boys from 110 leave a jar of imported French mustache wax.

The good attendance banner is left to Mr. Passaretti.

A dog-eared spelling list comes from an anonymous benefactor to Mr. Masse.

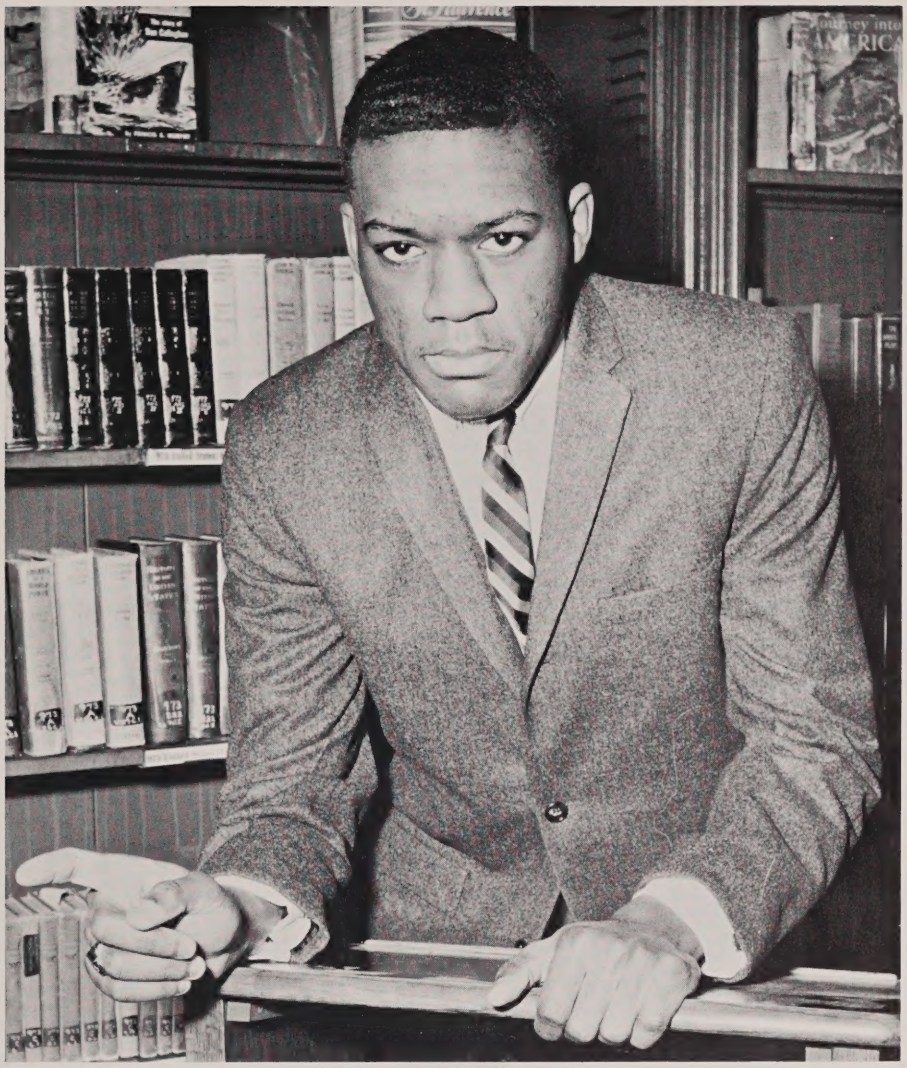
From all Mr. Ambrose's students comes the memory of his unique way of putting over those tough problems in math.

To Mr. McInerney, our beloved Head Master, we leave our sincere thanks for leading us through our years at Brighton High School, and for his never-ending task of making Brighton High one of the finest schools in this country.

To the new Sophomore Class we give the finest teachers, fondest wishes for success and happiness, and the best of luck in all they attempt.

To the Junior Class we leave all the fun and liveliness of one of the best years in high school.

And to the new Senior Class we leave a blank page in the history of Brighton High, with hopes that it will be filled with the happiness of a wonderful school life that is now a warm memory to the class of 1962.



CHARLES SWINDELL

CLASS ORATION

On Class Day as we look back over our three years at Brighton High, we realize how well our teachers have prepared us to meet the increasing demands of an ever changing world. For each field of endeavor, business or professional, our teachers have tried to instill into us the necessary ideals of cooperation, perseverance, and reliability. A momentary flash of concern may cause us to ask, "Are we ready to meet the challenges of the adult world? Can we face up to the challenge of today's crises?"

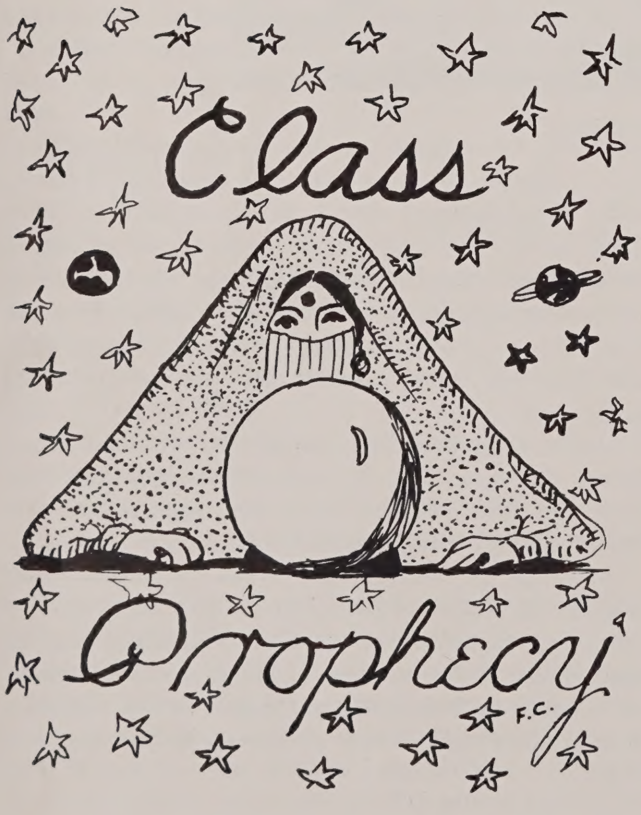
In many parts of the globe there have developed various trouble spots which can easily lead to world conflagration. Through intelligent diplomacy we hope that our State Department will solve the problems of Laos, Cuba, West Berlin, and the Congo. Such leadership calls for intense mental development. This is the type of solution to which our generation aspires.

Problems closer to home also face us: integration, automation, and possible inflation. Whatever the problems, because of our training, we feel that we can take our place in society and do our part in advancing civilization.

While we are hopefully considering what the future holds, we regret that our days at Brighton High are over and that we shall leave our teachers and our friends whom we have known for three years.

Although we are grateful to our parents and our teachers for their guidance, let us not forget to give thanks to the Almighty for all our blessings. Let us thank Him for the privilege of living in such a beautiful country such as ours, and especially for the privilege of attending a democratic school such as Brighton High.

ALBERTA McCURDY, VICTORIA KONDOS



As I entered the huge auditorium I could not help remembering that, only twenty years before, the idea of living underwater had been just the dream of two brilliant scientists, Irena Zagulska and John Collins. Their astonishing fantasy, however, had turned to fact and today, June 23, 1982, was Visitor's Day in Atlantis II, the submerged city created after many years of trial and error.

When everyone had been assembled in the spacious hall of which I have previously spoken, Mayor Albert Young began to unfold the complicated history of his city. He thanked the three millionaires, Lester Friedberg, Brian V. Gibbons, and Francis Larson, who had contributed overwhelming sums to the making of Atlantis II. An artist, Jacqueline Jackson, presented a pictorial display drawn as construction progressed. Tribute was paid to electronic experts, Edward Jekowski, Robert Naughton, and Kenneth Wiggins, who had planned much of the electrical network for the city. Also congratulated were the three nurses, Donna Harrison, Shirley Kardon, and Ruth Wolf who had stood faithfully by ready to help in the event of any emergency liable to occur during underwater construction work. Finally, when the mayor had completed his speech, guided tours were arranged for anyone interested in viewing Atlantis II. Together with Carolyn Keane, Roberta Goldstein, Janet Doyle, and Edward Balboni, I ventured forth on such a tour. I was surprised at the number of people I knew who were engaged in various occupations in the city. Working in a huge building located in the center of the business section were ten successful secretaries; Marilyn Barresi, Angela Ann Cammarata, Esther Claire Corbett, Regina Doucet, Catherine Meyerhoff, Ruth Mutch, Ann Reder, Linda Resnick, Dorothy Rubino, and Constance Wagner, all of whom had graduated from my old Alma Mater, Brighton High School.

Included in the route of the tour was the I.B.M. machine center where I chanced to meet Ronald Larkin, another ex-classmate. He acquainted me with the fact that also working in Atlantis II were many other members of the Class of 1962. I learned that Marie Tocci, Larraine Webber, Frank Curatolo, and Jane Wilker were teaching in the highly modern school system of the city, while Rhoda Green and Rosemarie Bowden were bookkeepers in the Mayor's office. Skindivers for the vast underwater zoo, Edward Anello, James Mannes, Alan Ward, Elizabeth Townsend, and Gregory Marciello were leading a very prosperous as well as adventuresome life here beneath the sea. Also indulging specifically in underwater occupations were Patricia McCabe, Janet Stewart, and Barbara Ann Sullivan, who recorded the varying pressure changes for the city's Control Center. Some other workers for this center were Philip Burleigh, Jr. (who owned Marina), and two buoy mechanics, John Rzezuski and Richard Scholl. After leaving the center we traveled in the strange cable cars designed by mechanics Edward C. Fong, Richard J. Izzo, Michael M. Rosnov, Frank A. Recupero and John Powers. They were very streamlined and shaped something like an old, 1962 model Triumph. I learned from Carburetor Specialists, John Giaquinto, Richard Grondin, and Allen Howley, that the mechanics of these cars were very complicated and that the perfection of the power units took mechanics Thomas Marmiani, Richard A. Marshall, George Mulcahy and Gerald D. Nelson many months of hard work. Having an idea of how these vehicles were run was a comfort to me, for speeding over the overhead roadways would have been torture if I had not been secure in the knowledge that they were actually accident-free.

Upon arriving at our next destination it was immediately apparent that the tall, towering white building looming before us was a hospital. Here we were greeted by medical secretaries Rosalyn Berman, Aldona Gedmintas, Beverly Justice, Carol Mahoney, Judith Steiner, and Judith Thomas, who described the advancements in medicine which the doctors of the hospital had accomplished. Medical technologist, Sandra Sancuk, introduced us to the two most foremost dental Assistants Susan Rogowitz and Nanette Willens who, while adjusting certain materials in a dentist's office had, accidentally, concocted a drink which removes all feelings in the area to be treated, thus allowing the painless drilling and pulling of teeth. Witnesses to this fact were Edward Gobbi, Robert Gosnell, Joseph Zasszewski and Robert Igoe, who had previously had teeth pulled or filled under the influence of this drink.

After we left the hospital, our guide took us to a beautiful park in the middle of the city. On the outskirts of the park was a massive monument upon which was inscribed the complete story of the building of Atlantis II. Upon reading the inscription, we learned James Delbou, Joseph Murphy, and Michael Ryder had devised a system by which oxygen was pumped into this area. It stated how a great dome fitted over the city reflecting the rays of the sun and thus creating daylight much the same as that on land. Many other details were giyen explaining the various functions of the underwater control works. Before leaving the park we dined in an exquisite restaurant whose architectural design was like that of a huge tower. Winding high above the ground, the building's plaza allowed a perfect view of the surrounding city. Thus with aid of field glasses we could watch the auto races being run at the mile long racing track located on the other side of the park. We heard from the intercom system that the drivers in the race were Glen Ellegood, John Dorsey, Malcom Crowder, Jr., Robert R. Forziati, Thomas J. Fogel, and Dominic Faliero. Being mechanics, all of the contestants had designed and built their own vehicles. All of them were employed at the vast garage owned by Gerald F. Chaulk and Ralph du Chalard, who were both ex-racing champions. Having obtained countless numbers of victories, these two drivers had retired and were now interested spectators at the races. It appeared that a good part of the population of Atlantis II consisted of sports enthusiasts some preferring tortoise racing or other such unusual pastimes. We learned from our guide that two politicians of the Mechanics Union, Richard Fellone and Peter Giunta, while campaigning a few months before, had suggested racing the giant turtles which were friendly towards the inhabitants of Atlantis II. In fact, these creatures were almost as domestic as cats and dogs, following people around on their flat footed webbed feet. So, to gain publicity, the two politicians hired mechanics, Michael Connor, Paul Babin, Robert Burke, and Oliver Fleming to induce a group of the tortoises to be hitched to little sulky-like carts. Having been fairly successful in achieving this, Richard Ace, Lawrence Landry, and Robert Whitcomb were inveigled into driving these contraptions and thus the race had begun. Although not altogether successful, the sport proved popular and was gradually turned into a city-wide occupation. Although at the time this seemed odd to us, tourists in this strange place, we soon got used to such odd amusements.

As the tour came to a close, we were all reluctant to depart. Unable to resist the unbelievable atmosphere of Atlantis II, I resolved to return soon to make the underwater city my home.

A
OPENS UP
A BIG
FOR ANY GIRL

When you graduate it's wonderful to have a telephone job waiting for you. You'll love the friendly new people you meet. And you'll like the excellent salary, the regular increases, the opportunities for advancement and the many additional benefits that make working for the Telephone Company so attractive to so many young people.

Telephone jobs are important ones. We have our own training program which you can enter without any previous job experience.

Why not come and see our employment interviewer soon . . . before you graduate. Ask the Guidance Counselor at your school to tell you when and where to apply.
